DETAILED ACTION

Terminal Disclaimer

The terminal disclaimer filed on 6/04/2007 disclaiming the terminal portion of any patent granted on this application which would extend beyond the expiration date of US 7,161,056 has been reviewed and is accepted. The terminal disclaimer has been recorded.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-3 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fabo US 5,635,201 in view of Perrone US 5,669,277.

As to claim 1, Fabo discloses a method for making a wound dressing including a perforated silicone gel layer, the method comprising the steps of: placing a layer of uncured silicone gel having a thickness onto a planar surface of a perforation device (col. 1, line 43) having a plurality of perforating elements that extend through the silicone gel layer; and peeling the silicone gel layer adjacent the planar surface at least partially cured. Fabo does not expressly state that the perforating elements located on and extending from the planar surface a distance therefrom greater than the thickness of the uncured silicone gel. Perrone teaches a device for placing perforations in paper. In the method, Perrone teaches the surface of the perforation device to have elements (42,44) extending from the surface of the device. It is inherent that the perforation elements are a distance from the planar surface a distance greater than the thickness of the uncured silicone or else they would be unable to make a perforation through the entire layer of silicone. Therefore it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to include the perforating elements of Perrone in the device of Fabo for the purpose of being able to mass produce multiple wound dressings with apertures or perforations.

As to claim 2, Fabo discloses the step of heating the planar surface of the perforation device ('201, col. 1, line 45)

As to claim 3, the perforating elements have a cross-section shape selected from the group consisting of circular, square, triangular, elliptical, rectilinear and combinations thereof ('277, see figure 1).

As to claim 4, the perforating elements are equally spaced from one another ('277, see figure 1).

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
